The Democrats are always losing. They can't find the "harmony" that made the party so solid after the Cincinnati convention.

There are 48,000 Knights Templar in the United States. In wealth it surpasses any other organization in the country.

The more the Democrats hear of cheering Republican reports regarding the campaign, the more they do not know what to do about it.

Mr. Tilden has not yet opened his barrel for the hungry Democrats, and so far he has not been found sitting up nights working for Hancock.

We don't hear anything more about the Democrats carrying any of the Northern States. Their hope and enthusiasm have gone where the woodbine twineth.

Two Democratic editors in Washington are having a furious quarrel. They call each other pretty tough names, and that is the time when they speak the truth.

A Democratic candidate who has no money to spend in this campaign is a very unpopular sort of a man. What the party want above all things else are money and political power.

English, though worth two million dollars, has never had his name connected with any deed of charity. He will not give much to the canvass for the reason that he would rather spare blood than money.

There is such a flattering prospect in Connecticut for the Republicans to carry the State, that the Democrats find it hard work to get men to go upon their ticket. The Republican outlook is democratizing to the Democrats.

The administration of General Hancock while in New Orleans should be written up as a campaign document by the Republicans. The Democrats do not seem to be particular about showing up Hancock's statesmanship.

Two years ago the Democratic party said that resumption would bring the country to ruin. Resumption came, and with it prosperity, and now the Democratic party wants the credit of securing to the country prosperity.

The more the State Hospital for the insane is investigated, the more evident it becomes that the trustees are not fit for the positions they hold. The investigations from day to day show general looseness in the matter of keeping the books of the institution.

Mr. Thomas Nast brings out another cartoon this week illustrating a lot of hungry Democrats gathering around English and demanding money. In this crowd seem to be the bullies of the South, state prison candidates, the ward politicians, and in fact all grades of Democratic "workers." Near by sits Tilden on the head of his own barrel, with his head turned toward English, his face wearing Sammy's peculiar smile, which means—"open your own barrel, you can't have any of mine." The chorus of hungry Democrats will make it warm for Billy English before the campaign is over, if he does not meet the Democratic demands.

CENSUS FRAUDS IN THE SOUTH.

There have been repeated charges made that in taking the census of South Carolina, gross frauds were perpetrated. For some time General Walker, who in charge of the census bureau, was not disposed to place any credit in the reports. But the matter has been investigated by impartial persons, and the results are nothing less than startling. The announcement was made several weeks ago, and before the census had been fairly completed, by Senator Butler, of South Carolina, and others, that the State would show an increase in population of from 30 to 35 per cent, and would be entitled to another member of Congress. The country little thought that for political reasons only, the persons entrusted with the taking of the census in that State would deliberately go to work to make a false count. But to all appearances, they have done this very thing. There is abundant evidence that there has been gigantic Democratic swindling as the facts will show.

The New York Times dispatched a correspondent to South Carolina, a man well known for his ability and whose judgment and honor are far above suspicion. He made a careful examination of the official returns from 23 of the 32 counties and the conclusion is irresistible that there has been a dishonest embezzlement of the inhabitants of that State. These 23 counties show an increase of more than one-third since 1870, although for the preceding decade the growth was only seven per cent, and for the ten years preceding that, the increase was not more than 1 per cent. In order to make the comparison more forcible and the frauds more apparent, 10 counties were selected which are chiefly made up of agricultural districts with a very few small villages which have shown no signs of growth whatever. These 10 counties, as thinly populated as they are, and as destitute of any sort of progress as they still seem to be, have been made by Democratic enumerators to increase in population since 1870 to the extraordinary extent of nearly 50 per cent! These agricultural districts are thinly settled to-day, as much so ever, and the villages show no more signs of life or improvement than they did ten years ago.

One county in particular—Kershaw—which has only one small village, has no manufacturing industries, which has no thrifty agricultural population, and which steadily lost in population from 1850 to 1870, is made to show the amazing increase of 80 per cent, during the last ten years! And the oldest inhabitants will acknowledge that they do not know of any influx of settlers. The frauds committed in Kershaw county are but illustrations as to how the census was conducted in the other 22 counties. In all of them similar frauds were committed and for one purpose only, that of increasing the Confederate representation in Congress.

These facts go to prove that the Democrats in the South are willing to perpetrate any fraud that is possible, in order to gain more political power. Not being satisfied with tissue ballots, intimidations, shotguns, murders and false counting of the votes, they now turn their attention to fraudulently enumerating the inhabitants for the direct purpose of gaining unjust power in the Congress of the United States. What will be done in this case can not yet be told. It must be very apparent to General Walker, superintendent of the census, that frauds have been most startling, and it is his duty, if he is satisfied there have been frauds, to order a re-enumeration. The country demands that there shall be justice done, and he cannot afford to allow the matter to go unnoticed.

YOUNG MEN AND POLITICS.
We publish in another column a portion of a speech delivered by General Garfield, at Cleveland, on the Saturday night prior to the Ohio election last October. It will be found especially interesting to young men who are to cast their first votes this year. It was made for them, and the words spoken by General Garfield are words of solid wisdom, and should be carefully read and thoroughly studied by the young men of the country. This year, this class of voters have to make their choice between the two parties engaged in a struggle to control the government. It is a struggle between one section of the country which tried to save the Union and one which tried to destroy it. The Republican party represents those who tried to save the United States from the calamity of disunion, while the Democratic party represents those who strove to bring about dissolution of the American Union. General Garfield urges them not to "pitch their tents among the dead—not to support a party whose camp is a graveyard filled with tombstones which commemorate its past follies, wrong doing and defeat." This fact must be remembered, that every principle the Democratic party has advocated in past campaigns is dead and buried. But on the other hand every principle the Republican party has advocated, whether during the war, during the period of reconstruction, or during the contest or an honest currency and an unchallenged government, is vital to-day, or "has passed out of the present politics only because it has been fully accomplished in spite of Democratic opposition, and is embodied in constitution and laws of the country."

What every young man should do who is about to cast his first vote, is to select a party which represents the highest principles of humanity, which has for one of its corner stones the freedom of mankind, which is a party of intelligence and of high political morals, and which defends and protects the interests of the great working classes of this country. This is the party for them to join, it is the party for them to work for and to support with all the fresh energy and enthusiasm they can command. A young man of broad common sense, who is a careful observer of men and things, who is capable of thinking and acting for himself, and who desires to place his political influence where it will do the most good to himself, and the greatest service to his neighbor, cannot afford to support the Democratic party—a party which is ashamed of its own record, and can not look back upon what it has done during the past twenty years without blushing. Young men must remember that it is a party of slavery, of rebellion, of repudiation of frauds, and is opposed to a free ballot and a fair count.

We advise every young man, and everybody in fact, to read the manly and earnest words of General Garfield. They are worth hearing. They came from one of the most eminent statesmen of this country, and a man whose record is without a blemish. He is a fit man to be heard and his advice is well worth the sober consideration of every young voter. The importance of young men voting the Republican ticket now is not the only consideration General Garfield had in view when he delivered the speech, but he had in his mind that graver fact, if possible, that to the young generation of voters who are just coming on the stage will have intrusted to them the destinies of the country.

HANGED.

Special to the Gazette.

GREENVILLE, Ohio, Aug. 20.—Monroe Robinson was hanged here to-day for shooting his father-in-law, Coulter. He killed his first wife in Missouri, and then married her sister. He killed a man in Maryland, and fled to Kansas, where he killed another man. He was a guerrilla during the war, and killed seven negroes in one day. He subsequently came to Ohio after the war. Coulter interfered to prevent Robinson from abusing his wife, and was shot. He shot at an officer who arrested him. He was respited from July 16 until to-day. Two weeks ago he cut his throat but was saved.

GRAND DEMONSTRATIONS.

The Success of the Republican Meeting at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—There was a monster meeting here to-night to ratify the nominations of Garfield and Arthur. Inasmuch as Washington City is not a voting place, it had not been expected that the demonstration would assume very large proportions, but the crowd and enthusiasm were beyond all expectations, and there never has been at this season of the year so large a crowd assembled in front of the City Hall, around the Lincoln statue, as there was to-night. It is estimated that fifty thousand people were massed in the large area in front of the building. All the State Associations in the different departments were present in a body, and the large procession which escorted the speakers to the ground received additions from the great mass of citizens. It is true that in this multitude there were hundreds of colored men, but the fact was not without its significance to the few observing Democrats, as it ought to have taught them, if it did not, with a free ballot and a fair count in the South, and an election in which the night-riders, and bulldozers, and the rifle clubs were not used to collect the ballot, the South would be no longer solid in the interests of the Democratic party. The speakers all spoke with confidence, earnestness, and enthusiasm. Among the speakers appointed to address the meeting were the Hon. A. M. Chapman, the Hon. Frederick Douglass, Judge A. O. Freeman, the Hon. A. G. Ridder, General William Byrnes, the Hon. John Sherman, Judge J. N. North, General J. H. Sypner, Prof. Riehl, T. Greener, General Adam E. King, the Hon. H. P. Peace, the Hon. William Lawson, the Hon. S. S. Budde, the Hon. Milton Gunter, the Hon. George E. Harris, the Hon. George B. Wright, and Dr. Purvis. But unfortunately there was a heavy rain at 10 o'clock, which caused the meeting at several of the stands to be abandoned.

WEAVER.

The National Greenback Candidate's Definitive Hope.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 19.—A wealthy property-owner named Joseph Helm today attempted to murder Thomas J. Pennington, a young lawyer. Pennington had advanced money to Helm, taking a mortgage. Afterward he found there was a mechanic's lien upon the place, and he refused to furnish another $4,000 that he had arranged to advance. A litigation ensued, and the property was bid in by Pennington, and then the two began negotiations to have Helm take possession of it again. Pending this arrangement they came together to-day, Helm became excited, and drew a knife upon the lawyer. The latter had a desperate struggle with him while the police were being called. He escaped without injury.

He has been in the State since the 9th inst., and made ten speeches. The division in the Democratic party on the Fishback amendment to the Constitution he thinks insures a free ballot and a fair count. Large crowds attended his meetings, and the party is well organized throughout the State. The Republicans have no State ticket in the field.

ON THE STUMP.

A Campaign Speech Last Fall by General Garfield.

An Appeal to Young Men in Ohio in the Campaign of '79—Closing Speech in Cleveland in October.

"Now, fellow-citizens, a word before I leave you on the eve of the holy day of God—a fit moment to consecrate ourselves to the great work of next Tuesday morning. I see in this great audience to-night a great many young men—young men who are about to cast their first vote. I want to give you a word of suggestion and advice. I heard a bright thing said by a boy the other day up in one of our Northwestern counties. He said to me: 'General, I have a great mind to vote the Democratic ticket.' That was not the bright thing. [Laughter.] I said to him, 'Why?' 'Why, said my father is a Republican, and my brothers are Republicans, and I am a Republican all over, but I want to be an independent man, and I don't want anybody to say, "That fellow votes the Republican ticket just because his dad does, and I have half a mind to vote the Democratic ticket just to prove my independence." I did not like the thing the boy suggested, but I did admire the spirit of the boy that wanted to have some independence of his own.

"Now I tell you young men, don't vote the Republican ticket just because your father votes it. Don't vote the Democratic ticket, even if he does vote it. [Laughter.] But let me give you this one word of advice, as you are about to pitch your tent in one of the great political camps. Your life is full and buoyant with hope now, and I beg you, when you pitch your tent, pitch it among the living and not among the dead. [Applause.] If you are at all inclined to pitch it among the Democratic people and with that party, let me go with you for a moment while we survey the ground where I hope you will shortly lie. [Laughter.] It is a sad place, young man, for you to put your young life into. It is to me far more like a graveyard than a camp for the living. Look at it! It is hollowed all over with graves of dead issues, of buried opinions, of exploded theories, of disgraced doctrines. You cannot live in comfort in such a place. [Laughter.] Why, look here! Here is a little double mound. I look down on it and I read, 'Sacred to the memory of Squatter Sovereignty and the Dred Scott Decision,' that is, during the time covered by the census just taken—the receipts of internal revenue have fallen off 52 per cent, or from $258,265 to $111,960. In the same time the increase in the collections in Wisconsin have been 37 per cent, and in Michigan 44 per cent. Yet the increase of population turns out to be about 25 per cent, while South Carolina, with a falling off of 52 per cent in collections, claims 43 per cent increase in population. The Postoffice returns are equally significant. While the postal revenues have increased during the decade only 34 per cent in South Carolina, they have increased 60 per cent in Minnesota. While the ratio of population does not follow the percentage of internal revenue and postal receipts, it is very difficult to think the differences so great as those claimed by the alleged increase in the population of South Carolina.

The figures of the Internal Revenue and the Postal Service afford an interesting commentary upon the alleged great increase of population in South Carolina. From July, 1870 to July, 1880, that is, during the time covered by the census just taken—the receipts of internal revenue have fallen off 52 per cent, or from $258,265 to $111,960. In the same time the increase in the collections in Wisconsin have been 37 per cent, and in Michigan 44 per cent. Yet the increase of population turns out to be about 25 per cent, while South Carolina, with a falling off of 52 per cent in collections, claims 43 per cent increase in population. The Postoffice returns are equally significant. While the postal revenues have increased during the decade only 34 per cent in South Carolina, they have increased 60 per cent in Minnesota. While the ratio of population does not follow the percentage of internal revenue and postal receipts, it is very difficult to think the differences so great as those claimed by the alleged increase in the population of South Carolina.

There is now some reason to believe that the census will be taken over again in South Carolina. The Superintendent of the Census, has power to remove the present enumerators and Supervisors, and to appoint new ones, giving to the latter the compensation that would have been paid to the first appointees if the count had been correct. The final decision will not be made until the return of Secretary Schurz.

THE CYCLONE.

Further Details of the Dakota Cyclone.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 19.—A Fargo special to the Pioneer-Press says three deaths are known to have resulted from the terrible storm of Tuesday night that passed over the Southern portion of Cass county. Mr. Alexander Brunell, living twelve miles south of Fargo, was killed by his house falling in and burying him. A child of Charles Dukekow, 12 years old, living in the same neighborhood, and a Mrs. Brown living nine miles south of Mapleton, are also victims of the disaster. There are other reported deaths, but the three above named are all that are known to have been killed. The action of the storm was remarkable. The spokes of large farm wagons were literally torn from the hubs, the tires and springs bent and twisted and the whole mass blown many miles distant. In some places funnel-shaped clouds were seen to descend to the earth, traveling along for a distance of a mile or two, and then ascending. Its track afterwards was marked by the destruction of every object. Wheat stalks are found in the fields everywhere ten or twelve miles distant from the path of the storm. As stated in the dispatch of our correspondent yesterday, the injury to the crops will only be felt by the families who were unfortunate enough to be struck by the cyclone, but will not affect the estimated yield already published. It is not thought that more than fifty farm houses have been demolished.

"But there are no dead issues here.

There are no dead issues here. Hang out our banner from under the blue sky this night until it shall sweep the green earth under your feet. It hangs over our camp. Read away up under the stars the inscription we have written on it, lo! these twenty-five years.

"Twenty-five years ago the Republican party was married to Liberty, and this is our silver wedding, fellow-citizens. [Great applause.] A worthy married pair love each other better on the day of their silver wedding than on the day of their first espousals, and we are truer to Liberty to-day, and dearer to God, than we were when we spoke our first word of liberty. Read away up under the sky across our starry banner that first word we uttered twenty-five years ago! What is it? 'Slavery shall never extend over another foot of the Territories of the Great West.' [Applause.] Is that dead or alive? Alive, thank God, forevermore. [Applause.] Then it was a hope, a promise, a purpose. To-night it is equal with the stars—immortal history and immortal truth. [Applause.]

"Come down the glorious steps of our banner. Every great record we have made we have vindicated with our blood and our truth. It sweeps the ground and it touches the stars. Come there, young man, and put in your young life where all is living, and where nothing is dead but the heroes who defended it! [Applause.] I think these young men will do that. [Of course they will!]

"Gentlemen, we are closing this memorable campaign. We have got our enemies on the run everywhere. [Laughter.] And all you need to do in this noble city, this capital of the Western Reserve, is to follow them up and finish it by showing the rebellion under once more. We stand on an isthmus. This year and next is the narrow isthmus between us and perpetual victory. If we can win now and win in 1880, then the stars in their courses will fight for us. [Applause.] The census will do the work, and will give us thirty more free-men of the North in our Congress that will make up for the rebellion of the South. [Great applause.] We are posted as the Greeks were at Thermopylae, to meet this one great barbarian, Xerxes, of the isthmus. Stand in one place, men of Ohio! Fight this battle, win this victory, and then one more puts you in safety forever!"

WILD HOGS.

How They are Hunted in Tennessee.

Some Exciting Experiences.

The early settlers brought hogs with them to this country, and having little or no food for them, suffered them to stray off among the hills to root for their own living. The mast, which is very abundant in these hills, consists of hickory, beech and chestnut, as well as acorns, so that hogs, deer and turkeys grow fat in it in the fall and winter. Hogs stray off miles away from their owners, and become wild as deer, and it requires as much skill and cunning to capture the one as the other, and in the course of time their whole nature is entirely changed. Instead of the fat, lazy lubbers, as we see them on the farms, or as a house pet in an Irish shanty, they become ferocious wild beasts. They grow tall and subsided. Their ears stand up straight, their hair grows long and wiry, and in short, they are a different animal in nature, habits and appearance.

Mountain wolves are plenty in these hills, but they seldom attempt to capture a hog from the drove, knowing they are likely to be captured themselves.

The people who live in the hills depend almost entirely on game and wild hogs for their supply of meat. The wild hog is not fit for food in summer, but grows fat in the late fall and early winter on the great abundance of mast in these great forests. The wild hog here is not considered the property of any one master, but is looked upon as common stock property for all who may choose to pursue and capture him.

After a hard night's rest on a blanket before a big log fire, we are up by daylight to find about three inches of snow on the ground, just what we wanted. Even the long Kentucky rifle is left hanging in the rack in the cabin. Our outfit consists of a stout hickory club and a butcher knife, the latter tightly belted around the waist in a leather scabbard. These are the only sporting tools used for hunting wild hogs in these hills, and they are very effective, as we shall presently see.

Some seven or eight of us, with as many stout dogs, set out that morning, and after a tramp of three miles or more we begin to discover signs of game. We now halt and hold a council of war. Our old bushwhacker, Jack Newland, is chosen Captain of the party, and the plans of the hunt chalked out by him.

A bootblack behind the stove here began to grin. Bijah walked over and seized his hair and gave him a lift in the world and whispered in his ear:

"Boy, I want you to understand that I've been in more Mexicoes than you've got hairs on your scalp, and any more gams around here will lose you the top of your head!" — Detroy Free Press.

How to Keep Lard.

WHEN the scraps are just beginning to get brittle and brown, put in a tablespoonful of fine salt to a quart of the hot lard, and there will be no trouble; the lard will keep perfectly sweet for any length of time, and the salt does no possible harm to any kind of cookery. A person can easily judge of the quantity of lard if they know how much the kettle holds. It makes the lard whiter and harder, aside from preserving it sweet. It must cook a little while after adding the salt. That designed for summer use should be either kept in a tight earthen jar or a tin bucket with a cover. To restore lard that is a trifle tainted, put the lard into an iron kettle, and cut up salt pork in thin slices—about one-half pound of pork to a gallon of melted lard; add two spoonsful of salt, and let it cook till the pork is crisp; take out the slices of pork and turn the lard into your jar, and you will never know that it has not always been sweet. But it is better to salt it in the first place, as it saves much trouble and time.

When the lard gets scorched by frying doughnuts, as it sometimes will (especially if the girls are doing it), it can be made nice again by slicing a raw potato into thin slices, and dropping into the kettle and frying till quite brown. They absorb all the bitter taste, and collect the dark specks on their surface, and make the lard fit for use again.

Another way to cleanse lard in the frying-pan is just before you set your kettle away, to pour in some boiling hot water and let it stand and cool. When you wish to use it again, take a knife and run around the edge of the lard; lift it from the kettle, and lay it bottom side up on a flat plate; scrape off all the brown coating for the soap grease; turn out the water and cleanse the kettle; if any water stands in drops on the lard, let it drain off, and your lard is pure and sweet.

By attending to these little items of economy, a great saving is effected in the course of a year, and farmers' profits are mostly made up of little items.

It is a common remark, if a farmer fails in business, that "his wife is extravagant"—as if all the blame rested on her for his misfortunes. I think it is a mistake to lay every thing on the shoulders of the wives, for there are some men who have proved themselves "penny wise and pound foolish."

A Diet of Eggs.

CONSIDERING the enormous quantities of eggs which are imported annually from France into this country, it would seem not only that the business of poultry farming is better understood across the Channel than it is here, but also that the English are even more fond than the French of this article of food. It is not uninteresting to have the opinion of a popular medical writer in France upon the merits and demerits of a diet of eggs. After explaining the chemical composition of a hen's egg, and laying due stress upon the large proportion of albuminous matter contained in it, Dr. Valourenco goes on to assert that some prudence should be exercised in indulging an appetite for eggs. Of all the six hundred different modes of preparing them for the table, the most wholesome is that of simply boiling them, as the French phrase has it. But it is necessary even in accepting this rule to qualify it by adding that the egg should not be boiled too much, as in such case it becomes very much less digestible. Another injunction is that the eggs should not be eaten without taking some wine or other liquid at the same time; and the Doctor recounts a story of a certain modern Blue Beard who was said to have killed four or five wives successively by inducing them every morning to eat two eggs without drinking anything at all. Moreover eggs are not to be devoured in large quantities at a time, unless the person making the experiment wishes to have a painful experience of the maxim that an egg is equivalent to a quarter of a pound of meat.

Apres of this latter warning the Frenchman might have added, if he had known it, a very modern Devonshire story of a laborer who was ordered by the village doctor to eat eggs, and whose employer gave him a shilling to enable him to comply with these orders without going to any unwarrentable expense. A few days afterward the good-natured employer called to ask how the sufferer was. He had followed out the doctor's injunctions with alacrity, but, instead of being any better, was a great deal worse; and further inquiries elicited the fact that he had bought eighteen eggs with his shilling, and had at once set to and finished them at a sitting.—London Globe.

We have seen a stout hog bound off through the woods with his rider while the dog was fast to his ears, and carry both a considerable distance before being killed. The sport is ludicrous in the extreme, as well as being attended with considerable danger; and unless one is familiar with it he is pretty apt to get severely hurt by the side wiles of the hog's long tusks. When we engaged this drove the fight was exciting and furious. As for ourselves, though not a coward, we must confess that we often preferred to take refuge in a sapling and watch the fight than to participate in it. The day was far advanced when the sport ended. We all assembled and built a large fire, and proceeded to drag the slaughtered hogs into camp, which proved a very laborious job. When all the killed had been brought in, we counted eleven large fat porkers. It was now near dark, and we concluded to camp there for the night—returning to where we had left our provisions in the morning. On first discovering the game and bringing it into camp, we hung up the hogs, to have them ready for transportation. We cut out tenderloins and broiled them on the live coals, and enjoyed a hearty supper and breakfast. During the night we were awakened by a pack of wolves which had assembled on a neighboring hill to give us a grand serenade. We could not see them, but should judge from the great noise they made that there were fifty at least, and had we not eight or ten stout dogs and a large fire they would doubtless have made an attempt to capture and carry off our game.—Cor. of the Cincinnati Commercial.

Hot Weather in Mexico.

The morning sun was dancing over the floor in double-shuffles as his Honor fell into the station, his face flushed, his hair wet, and his general look one of genessness. "Bijah, did you ever see such a scorcher?" he faintly inquired, as he fanned himself with his hat.

"This ere weather," replied the old janitor, as he stood his broom in the corner, "is freezing compared to some that I experienced in Mexico. Why, Judge, I've seen it so hot in Santa Fe that ink boiled in the ink-stand while I was trying to write a letter to my mother. I was sunstruck seven times in one day while driving a ice wagon."

"Mr. Joy," said his Honor, as he rose up and moved to his desk, "I was in hopes your late illness would be taken by you as a solemn warning, and I am grieved to find you still treading that same old path."

"Wasn't I ever in Mexico?" demanded the old man, as his face grew red.

Defensive Medication

Is a preparation which should never be neglected when danger is present, and therefore a course of treatment should be pursued as soon as possible, especially for the feebler and older people. As a remedy for biliousness, dyspepsia, nervousness, and bowel complaints there is nothing comparable to its wholesome restorative.

DAY'S Kidney Pad.

A DISCOVERY BY ACCIDENT. which supplies a want men of eminent ability have devoted years of study and experiment to find—a specific for diseases of the kidney, bladder, and ureters, and also for diseases of the nervous system—and from the time of its discovery has rapidly increased in favor, gaining the approval and confidence of medical men and those who have been suffering from various ailments. It has been found to be a valuable supplement to all other treatments.

DISEASES OF THE KIDNEYS.

We the most prevalent, dangerous and fatal disease of the human body, and it is now known that persons often die before they realize that they are suffering from it.

The most characteristic symptoms are general debility, loss of appetite, pain in the back, side or loins; a weak feeble exhausted feeling; loss of appetite and fear of exercise; severe and painful discharge of various kinds from the kidneys; and the passage of small minute shreds or casts in the urine; and when the disease is of long duration, there is much emaciation and general debilitation.

THE ONLY DISEASE.

We say positively and without fear of contradiction, that DAY'S KIDNEY PAD is the first and only reliable cure for every form of kidney disease, and it is the only safe and sure remedy for this complaint, and more effectual in its operation than any other treatment. By using faithfully and persistently no case will be found so incurable as not to yield full power to remedial treatment.

IS STRONGLY ENDORSED.

We have the most unequivocal testimony to its curative powers from many persons of high character and great influence.

"How a Life was Saved," giving the history of this new discovery, and a large record of most remarkable cures, is now in circulation.

The piling of new lumber at the West end of Milwaukee street bridge indicates that the repairs will soon be under way.

Those who have paid for the GAZETTE in advance will be credited with balance due them on the 19th inst. at the reduced rates.

Last evening's rain was a reign of terror to those who were caught out in their summer clothes, and umbrellaless. It was a drencher for thin waists and gauze coats.

The best legal authorities now agree that singing or whistling "Pinocchio" or "Grandfather's Clock" is subject to a fine the same as other acts or words provocative of an assault.

The dance given by the Odd Fellows last evening at Apollo hall was an enjoyable one, though the rain caused the attendance to be a little lighter than it otherwise would have been.

The new road to Afton will be ready for having trains roll over it by Tuesday next, and it is probable that the train bearing the militiamen and visitors to Rockford will go by that route.

The many expressions of praise for the dress of the GAZETTE, given by its patrons and friends here, are gratifying indications that they appreciate the improvement, and that enterprise has its reward.

In view of the encampment next week the Chicago & Northwestern railroad company will sell excursion tickets to Rockford and return, August 24, 25, 26, and 27, good to return until August 28, for $2.50 for the round trip.

Some mischievous boys sought to find sport in throwing stones through the stream of water which shoots out of the fountain in the park. As a result the upper part of the fountain has been broken so that the wire basket does not set very gracefully in its place.

On one or two occasions lately, unruly boys, either large or small, have for some reason best known to themselves, lighted a few street lamps, and left them burning. The burning of gas in such cases falls upon the company, and not upon the city, but the police will look after it sharply, and it will be no light matter for these self-appointed lamp-lighters, if caught.

One of our Main street grocerymen advertises "Dr. Tanner's life preservers" for sale. One of his customers, who found out that water melons were meant, was so pleased with the joke that he attempted to tell some of his fellow citizens of it. He told them that there were "Dr. Tanner's water melons" for sale at one of the stores, and then he waited and wondered why they didn't laugh and enjoy the joke as he did.

Dr. Hallinan has recently received a letter from Miss Nellie Martin, of Sun Prairie, whose eyes he treated, which shows notwithstanding the trouble with the runaway team at Rockford. This team threatened to demolish the whole band, but when the lame and halt were gathered up it was found that Horn was the only one who was much injured. He was badly shaken up, and for a time was thought to be seriously hurt, but came to, and is about as usual, though not able to do much in Chicago. Helms and Kent received slight injuries, but only slight and altogether the escape was a narrow one.

The California Knights were set on having the next triennial conclave in San Francisco. One of them in talking with a Janesville Knight said they had all got to come to see them. The Californians would arrange to pay the railroad fare for all of them from Omaha to San Francisco. With this tempting offer the Janesville Knight thought it possible to accept, and, tapping him kindly on the shoulder, remarked—"Well, now, my boy, if the walking is anyway good between here and Omaha, you will see us there."

Young Spicer who was found here night before last, wandering the streets, in a bewildered state of mind, was called for by his friends yesterday afternoon, and taken back to Milton, where his mother is visiting. Their home is now in Michigan, and they are temporarily stopping with friends at Milton, where Mr. Spicer at one time taught. The young man has been suffering from brain trouble for about two months, and although the watchfulness of friends he wandered to this city on foot, and reached home nearly exhausted.

One of Janesville's young ladies, while standing on the platform of a passenger coach at the depot this morning had a narrow escape from injury. In making up the accommodation, a car was sent thumping against the one on which she stood, and she lost her balance, and in a moment would have been beneath the wheels, had not Will Stewart, from Chicago, who is visiting here, caught her and pulled her back, being assisted in turn by Dr. Barnes, who pulled him back. As it was, the only injuries were a tear in the young lady's dress, and a scratch over the Doctor's eye, where his head struck against the side of the car.

BURGLARS BOLD.

The Reported Theft of $4,000 Worth of Valuables in Turtle—A Smaller Raid in Milton.

A heavy burglary is reported as having occurred in the town of Turtle. The particulars as given by the Beloit Free Press, and furnished by George H. Crosby, are that some unknown person or persons entered the residence of Mr. James F. Ross, in that town and succeeded in getting away with $4,000 of notes and valuable papers. Fortunately there was in this amount only $50 in cash, so that the property will probably be more readily recovered. The property belonged to Mr. Ross' mother, and the papers were kept in a bureau in her sleeping room. From this bureau the drawer containing them was found to be missing also, so that it seems the thieves must have worked hurriedly. Mr. Ross and all the family, except his mother and a servant girl, were at Geneva Lake, and it is supposed that the theft was committed Wednesday evening, while the girl was busy milking, and Mrs. Ross was strolling about the place, leaving the house unguarded for a short time.

LESSON STEAL.

Another burglary is reported as having taken place at Milton night before last. The residence of Stilman Babcock was entered, and some clothing, $2 in money, and a silver watch taken. It was thought they heard a noise in the night, but did not discover anything wrong until morning, when Mr. Babcock found his coat pants, vest missing, together with $2 in cash and his silver watch. A little later he found his pants tucked under the porch, but the thief had taken the suspenders with him.
